With over 14 years at TalentPeople, Jen has developed deep expertise in early careers solutions. Beginning a career as a teacher, she later transitioned into employability at GetMyFirstJob, and now reinforced her passion for education as a Career Enterprise Advisor.

In her current role, she lead sales strategy across public sector organisations and collaborates with employability-focused charities to drive meaningful social impact, ensuring that impact tracking and measurement are embedded in all initiatives.

Beyond employability, she has a strong passion for the advancement of technology, particularly AI, and its potential to revolutionise careers, learning, and early careers. She believes in harnessing innovation and data-driven insights to create smarter, more impactful solutions for individuals and businesses alike.
